Not illustrated. 1904 Excerpt: . . . were planted along the railroad track to conceal it from view. Three hundred Norway spruces were set out in the Frost nurseries to supply evergreens to cover the half hardy plants in the shrub collection at Highland Park. A small number of trees and shrubs were bought to add to the forest plantation, and the shrub collection. A small number of trees were bought to prepare in the nursery by transplanting so that they can be easily transplanted to the streets when required. A team of horses was bought to draw the sprinkler, and do other heavy work. One hundred and sixteen lockers were built for the golfers. Highland Park--At Highland Park a number of trees were cut down on the land south of Highland avenue, to allow others to grow and develop. Manure was spread on the flower beds, amongst the shrubs and in the...
